Time Fast Running Out, Red Negotiators Warned

Hospitalized Yanks Deny Red Taint

Ten Interviewed At Valley Forge Protest Bitterly

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Ten gaunt, tight-lipped men stepped into the public spotlight at Valley Forge military hospital to deny they had been tainted by communism while prisoners of war in Korea.

They were bitter—and they made it plain they felt they had reason to be.

The stage for their tense drama was set yesterday at the hospital here, a short drive from the Revolutionary War memorial park that gave the hospital its name. It had its origin in the circumstances surrounding their flight home after release by their Red captors.

While the 10—and 10 companions—were en route from Tokyo by plane last Thursday, an Air Force spokesman said the Pentagon had ordered a veil of secrecy thrown around the flight "because of the position taken by the Army and others that these men may have been misled under conditions of duress and hardship during the period of their captivity."

And the Pentagon said Valley Forge Hospital had been designated the best spot for treatment.

The 20 reached the hospital late Friday night, rested for a day and then were asked if they were ready to meet the press. Ten said they were anxious for the chance. Four refused bitterly. The rest were too ill or just didn't want any publicity.

The 10 interviewed were brought into a small auditorium two by two. The first pair were Cpl. Vernon L. Warren, 22, St. Louis, and Pfc. Roger Herndon, 20, Jacksonville, Fla.

Warren and Herndon said flatly they felt they had gotten "a dirty deal" in being labeled possible Communist sympathizers.

Herndon, whose right arm was amputated by the Chinese because

Budge Decker, Former County Auditor, Dies

Budge C. Decker, 72, of Columbus, a former Marion County auditor, died Sunday night in White Cross Hospital there. He was ill several months.

After leaving Marion 18 years ago, he worked for the state of Ohio and was a clerk in the tax commission office. In the early 1920's, he served two terms as county auditor here.

Born in Marion County, he was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Decker of Caledonia. His wife, Mrs Edith Jane Porter Decker, whom he married in 1920, died in 1940.

First serving as a deputy county auditor, beginning in 1911, under Jay Spaulding, he became the first Marion County auditor to serve four years in office. From Mar

Eisenhower Host to U.S. Governors

Will Get Report On State of World At Two-Day Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—With President Eisenhower as host, governors of the states and territories convene today for "a first-hand picture of the state of the world and the role of the U. S. in it."

Eisenhower set forth the purpose of the unusual conference in those words in inviting the governors to confidential sessions which will continue through noon tomorrow.

The President arranged to greet the state and territory executives personally at the start of the closed meetings, then have top officials of his administration brief them on military, diplomatic, financial and other phases of world affairs.

The White House said 45 state governors were expected to be on hand, together with governors of Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands. Gov. Dan McCarty of Florida and Gov. William B. Umstead of North Carolina were unable to attend because of illness, and Gov. Gordon Persons of Alabama sent word that state business would keep him at home.

After Eisenhower's brief remarks, the program calls for Vice President Nixon to present Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, for a report on the military situation, and Allen W. Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The schedule also included talks on foreign policy by Secretary of state Dulles and on foreign aid by Mutual Security Director Harold E. Stassen.

The President and members of his Cabinet were to be hosts at a White House luncheon. The afternoon session, with Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's chief assistant, presiding, called for talks by Acting Secretary of Defense Roger M. Kyes on internal security by

Mayor At Odds With Councilmen

Says He Won't Call 3rd Hearing on Belknap Print Shop Request

Decision of whether or not to grant Leo Belknap permission to construct a new printing shop at Tully and Oak Sts is strictly up to the Marion City Council, according to Mayor Harold F. Robinson.

He said today he will not call a third Marion Planning Commission hearing on the case in spite of the action of a committee of City Council, which Friday night decided to send the case back to the planning commission for a re-hearing. As mayor, Robinson serves as chairman of the commission.

The Planning Commission held two hearings on Belknap's application for permisison to build the shop in a residential area, and after the second meeting decided to grant permission to Belknap to go ahead with his plans. Commission decisions are subject to approval of Council.

At last Monday night's Council meeting Belknap and his attorney, and residents of the Tully and Oak Sts. area, who oppose the application, presented both sides of case to Council.

Following this, the matter was turned over to Council's Lands and Buildings Committee for further investigation and a public meeting

U.N. Stiffens Policy At Panmunjom

Demand Fast Action On POW Issue; Nominate Pakistan

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies nominated Pakistan today as a neutral caretaker for war prisoners who won't go home, and warned the apparently surprised Reds: Time is "fast running out" in the Korean truce talks.

Although Pakistan was one of the four Asian nations listed by the Reds as acceptable neutrals, the Communists sat mum.

Without even mentioning the Allied choice the Reds asked and received a recess until 11 a. m. tomorrow, possibly to consult higher Red officials.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., chief U. N. delegate, nominated Pakistan at the beginning of the meeting and then told the Reds:

"We are obliged to tell you once again that we will not engage in protracted and fruitless discussion during the current negotiations," which began April 25.

The Communists Saturday suggested Pakistan, Burma, India and Indonesia as acceptable hosts for the 48,000 Red prisoners who won't go home.

Pakistan was the third nation nominated by the United Nations. First was Switzerland, which the amputated by the Chinese because of a machine-gun wound received at the time of his capture in November, 1950, said he found no reason to accept Communist indoctrination.

"They showed us the best they had," he said, "and it was nothing."

And Herndon said, if his loss of an arm didn't stand in the way, he would be ready to go back to Korea "for another crack at the Reds."

Cpl. James L. Ball, 21, Bellburn, W. Va., said: "This Red label makes us feel like criminals. We are all completely innocent." And, after a slight pause, he added, "I never even heard the term 'brainwash' before I got back home."

Some of the staff officers at the hospital seemed as militantly confused by the situation as the men themselves.

"I don't know where this idea started," said one Army doctor, "but there's one thing for sure—we're not running a damned laundromat here."

Another officer, who asked—like his fellow staff member—that his name be withheld, said, "there has been a big foulup somewhere along the line."

Cpl. Robert H. Hickox, 23, Syracuse, N. Y., who was serving with the 65th Engineers when captured Nov. 27, 1950, said he considered the suggestion he or any other member of the group was Red-tainted "an insult."

"It didn't make homcoming any better," he said.

Cpl. Richard O. Morrison, 22, Burlington, Ia., said his reaction was the same as Hickox—"insulted."

A 22-year-old corporal from Oklahoma City, Okla.—Marvin L. Brown—said the Communists had forced him to back up Red charges of U. N. germ warfare in Korea under pain of death.

Brown, who lost his right arm after being wounded and captured on a night patrol March 5, 1952, said a Chinese officer told him he would be shot unless he admitted knowledge of germ warfare—but Brown hastened to add he felt there was no basis for a belief any of the repatriated prisoners had succumbed to Communist propaganda.

NEW YORK (AP)—Bandleader Artie Shaw told House investigators today so far as he knew he never had been a Communist—although he had attended meetings conducted by Hollywood Reds.

Shaw was the first witness before the House Committee on Un-American Activities as it launched a new probe into possible Communist infiltration into the entertainment industry.

Two Homes Ransacked

Two Marion County residents reported to the sheriff's office tha their homes had been broken into and ransacked sometime during Friday night.

Eugene Foos, who lives on Route 98 about one mile north o Route 30, reported that entry had been made into his home by breaking the glass on the front door. Only item reported missing wa an electric razor.

Alonzo Harts of near Kirkpatrick reported that a jar containing approximately 500-600 pennies was among the items missing from his home which apparently had been entered by using a key on the front door, sheriff's office records indicated.

Also missing from his hom were a wrist watch, an automatic coffee maker, a hat, shoes, and $12 in cash.

The sheriff's office is investigating the two break-ins.

38 More War Prisoners On Way to U.S.

TOKYO (AP)—Two military transport planes left tonight bearing 38 repatriated American war prisoners to the United States.

The first plane left at 6:21 p.m. (4:21 a.m. EST) and the second at 6:35 p.m.

Original plans called for all the former captives of the Communists to fly in a single big C97 Stratocruiser, but it developed mechanical trouble and two four-engine C54 transports were called into service.

The passenger list for separate planes was not given. However, the total list was announced by the Far East Command earlier today.

Previous transports have made a 17-hour flight to Honolulu, rested briefly there, and continued to Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco.

HEARS FROM SON

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Willie Johnson said today she has been hearing from her son Pfc. Alonzo S. Johnson, every two or three months, from the Red prison camp in Korea where he is interned. Johnson's name was among 39 given out by Pfc. Robert C. Stell. 21 of Baltimore, a recently released POW.

Ike Faces Test On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower faces what some congressmen say will be a major test of his leadership when Congress considers foreign aid this week.

Hearings open tomorrow before the combined Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees, with administration spokesmen expected to recommend a $5,800,000,000 program for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Free Europe's progress toward building a defense against any Communist aggression, whether aid emphasis should be shifted from Europe to the Red-threatened Far East, and how to substitute trade for aid—all these and other questions are due for a heavy working over.

Administration witnesses will include Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, Mutual Security Director Harold E. Stassen and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

SUNSTROKE VICTIM

CINCINNATI (AP)—Cincinnati recorded its first sunstroke victim of 1953 Sunday after 11-month-old Samuel Miller remained outside too long in his yard and had to be taken to General Hospital for medical observation. The temperature high was 81 degrees.

At that meeting, Belknap and his attorney and some eight residents of the Tully and Oak Sts. area again were present to present arguments for and against the proposed building.

Following this meeting, Harold Fralich, chairman, reported it was decided to send the matter back to the Planning Commission for reconsideration. He said the commission could then present its recommendations to Council for acceptance or rejection.

Fralich said the reason for the decision was because the committee felt the "commission hadn't done its job satisfactorily." He said only four of seven members of the commission were present for the hearings and that two of those present for the first hearing were not present for the second.

Mayor Robinson said today that it is only necessary for a quorum of the commission to be present for hearings. He said, "the Planning Commission has done its job and made a decision, now it's up to Council whether or not to approve the action of the commission."

He also pointed out that final approval of any permissive use permit granted by the Planning Commission is always up to Council.

A permissive use permit, for which Belknap applied, allows the use of an existing building or the construction of a new building for commercial purposes in a residential zone.

Belknap operates a printing shop at 407 N. Prospect St. He said he wished to construct the new building and abandon his present location to permit expansion and modernization of his business.

Mayor Robinson said today that he, Safety-Service Director Ralph Forrest, Harold Townsend, an Henry Drake were the members of the Planning Commission present for the second meeting. Members beside himself and Forrest present for the first meeting were Henry Krigbaum and Paul Fry he said.

Plane Overturns On Landing; Four Occupants Unhurt

A four-passenger Fairchild plane overturned in a field at 7 p.m. Sunday while landing at Marion Municipal Airport.

The pilot, Dwight Mahaffey, 56, of Morral, and three passengers escaped without injury.

The plane, which was arriving from Cleveland went off the left side of the runway, overturned when a gust of air tipped up a wing, and crashed into a cultivator in a nearby field, according to local state highway patrolmen who investigated. The cultivator owned by Merley Sipes of the Neidhart Road, received minor damage.

Minor damage to the propellor undercarriage, rudder control and top of the plane was reported.

monsoon rains from Calcuttas Dum Dum Airport on a Singapore-to-London flight— was the second fatal accident for Britains famed Comets and the first on a scheduled commercial flight. The plane was operated by the British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Preliminary reports said a fire or explosion shortly after the takeoff might have caused the disaster.

Search planes spotted the wreckage early yesterday morning in rough, barren country. A ground party reached the scene in the afternoon. The giant four-engine plane was smashed to bits and had been flung over a wide area. Some bodies, burned beyond recognition, were found four miles apart.

The Americans were identified as the Rev. Paul Snead, a Methodist missionary stationed at Ipoh, Malaya, who was reported on his way home for leave with his family in Nyack, N. Y., and Miss Jean S. Cohen and Miss Anita Whistler, two teachers making a world tour after completing exchange teaching assignments in Rangoon, Burma.

spokesman said today. In last November's election 18,112 were entitled to vote. Since that time the difference of about 1,500 voters have been dropped from the eligibility list due to failure to vote for two years.

The scarcity of contests among office contenders and the absence of special issues on the ballots is expected to keep the vote-turnout at a low figure.

In the comparable 1951 May primary, which had no Democratic contests but did carry a $2,900,000 school bond issue, a total of 5,930 votes were cast from among the 15,033 persons eligible to vote at that time, elections board figures reveal.

A total of 12 absentee ballots have been cast, elections board officials reported, and one Armed Forces ballot has been taken out.

From among the 10 Republican and 11 Democratic candidates on the ballots, only six nominations are being contested. On the Democratic ticket, two men are seeking nomination as mayor and two men have filed for nomination as Second Ward councilman. On the Republican ticket, two men have filed for the party's nomination as president of council.

Other Republican contests are for ward council posts, with three Republicans seeking Second Ward posts, three seeking Fourth Ward

Views Conflict On Proposed Tariff Policy

New Bill Limits Presidential Powers, Adds Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration was called upon to tell Congress today what it thinks of a bill which Rep. Kean (R-NY) sai would put the President's foreign policy "in a strait jacket."

Secretary of State Dulles was the first of six Cabinet members scheduled to testify on trade and tariff policy, traditionally a sore issue in Congress.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey was next today on the list of witnesses before the House Ways and Means Committee. Then, tomorrow and Wednesday, will come the secretaries of commerce, agriculture, interior and labor, and Mutual Security Administrator Harold E. Stassen.

Kean, fourth senior GOP committee member, said this lineup of the administration's highest officials might be able to swing enough Republicans in line to fulfill Eisenhower's avowed program "if the administration sticks to its guns."

Eisenhower has asked for a straight extension of the present reciprocal trade program, now due to expire June 12. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said on a radio broadcast yesterday that if the President gets what he wants, it will be only because of support from Democrats.

Before the committee is a bill by Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa) containing new provisions designed to bolster protection for American industry against any injury from cheaper, competing foreign goods sold here.

Many U. S. allies have urged Eisenhower to move in the opposite direction from the Simpson bill—to lower tariff and other trade barriers so that they may sell more goods here and boost their short supply of dollars. This is the theory of "trade—not aid."

Reds opposed. Then Sweden. The Communists insisted on an Asian nation. They want the reluctant POWs shipped to the neutral country for screening after an armistice is agreed upon. The Allies want a neutral country to assume control of them in Korea.

Harrison told reporters:

"The current negotiations are really no different from last summer." The Allies broke off the meetings Oct. 8 when the Reds kept stalling on the prisoner exchange question.

Harrison said no time limit has been set for the armistice talks, but twice inside the conference hut he delivered an implied warning that he would end the talks again if the Reds did not begin to produce.

Harrison reminded the Reds that they mentioned Burma, Indonesia, Pakistan and India as suitable Asian neutrals.

He said that unless they had named these four for propaganda purposes, "we must assume that you consider each of the four" to be neutral and competent and therefore suitable.

"In our sincere effort to achieve an agreement . . . we are prepared to meet you halfway in the matter of a neutral nation. Although we have previously nominated Switzerland and Sweden we are now prepared to nominate one of the four countries which you have named. We now nominate Pakistan, an Asian nation both neutral and competent, and one of the four whose suitability you obviously implied in your question to us. Now we expect you to demonstrate your sincerity by agreeing to have this power serve as custodial neutral.

"Based on your own statements, we expect that our nomination will be quite acceptable to you and will result in quick agreement on this issue. If so, then this will have been the first indication since these talks began that there may be some justification in our agreement to meet with you again. We hope that this indication may not be nullified by subsequent negotiations."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red delegate, answered with a statement apparently prepared in advance. He insisted that the first order of business should be an agreement that unwilling prisoners should be transported physically to a neutral nation.

Nam's statement gave no clue to the reason the Communists had requested and received a one-day recess over the week end.

$22,000 BURGLARY

CLEVELAND (AP)—Police looked today for the four armed men who got $6,000 in cash and $16,500 in checks from the Penny Eagle Super Market after locking the president, Joseph Edelstein, and six workmen in the basement cooler. Edelstein said the four entered Sunday as he was directing remodeling operations.

Might Look OK to Man From Mars

Engineers Say Ohio's Roads Are Inadequate

By ART PARKS

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Only a man from Mars would say the highways of Ohio are adequate for modern needs.

Seen from the air, Ohio's highway system is a marvelous thing. Only Indiana of all the states in the Union has more miles of highways than Ohio.

But from ground level, the bulk of the sprawling Ohio system is quite another story.

Engineers declare—and the average motorist quickly agrees—most Ohio roads are too thin, narrow and too crooked.

Ohio has been fighting a losing battle on the highway front for a generation.

The last time the state picked up any ground on the runaway highway problem was in the mid-twenties in the days of the late Vic Donahey, then governor, later senator.

His slogan was: "Get Ohio out of the mud." His administration did.

But, many of Ohio's present road problems didn't exist then. Donahey was able to concentrate on gravel and mud roads. Because many were paved during those years, Ohio has from the Donahey regime a heritage of a better-than-average secondary road system.

Ohio has spent every available cent in its highway fund for the last 25 years. It still hasn't kept pace with the ever-mounting number of vehicles blanketing the highway system.

Thirty years ago, the state's motor vehicle registrations hit the million mark. Today, there are three and one-half times that many.

Those 3½ million vehicles—bumper to bumper—would fill 14 four-lane highways from the Pennsylvania line to the Indiana border. That's allowing only a 20-foot average length per vehicle.

Volume of traffic is only one part of the problem, though.

The last generation has seen the advent of the huge semi-trailer truck, the highway boxcar. It takes a wider road for two big trucks to pass than for two passenger cars. It also takes wider bridges.

A heavily loaded truck—which Ohio law permits to weigh up to 39 tons—needs a more solid road than an auto.

Speed is another factor which has put many Ohio roads a generation behind the times. At today's higher average speeds, bad curves often mean accidents and cost lives. And abutments on narrow bridges can be death traps for fast drivers.

Lack of speed also is a problem. A truck loaded to the gunwales almost literally crawls up a steep hill. Drivers in light cars fume because they can't pass the creeping giants. There are two solutions. One is to add an extra traffice lane on the upgrades to permit passing. The other, more expensive solution: Cut the hill down to size.

What will cure Ohio's highway ills? Money, primarily.

The Cullinan diamond, found in 1905, was cut into nine large stones.

Despondent Mother Kills 4 Children

MAHWAH, N. J. (AP)—A 29-year-old woman, estranged from her ex-football star husband, killed her four young children by carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in the garage of their fashionable home.

In an apparent change of mind, she pulled some of the youngsters from the family station wagon, but not in time to save them, police said.

"Why didn't it kill me, why didn't it kill me?" moaned Mrs. Carol MacDonald when police found her in the living room of her home.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Ellis Kopp said she apparently tried to take her own life, and had left six suicide notes. However, he said, there was no evidence that Mrs. MacDonald actually tried to kill herself.

A hazy story from the woman failed to establish whether she had been in the death car with her two sons and two daughters, who ranged in age from 2 to 7 years.

Police quoted Mrs. MacDonald as saying, "At least the children won't have anything to worry about now."

A murder charge was placed against the woman in Bergen County Jail. Kopp said he was uncertain whether she would be arraigned today or taken to a mental hospital for observation.

Mrs. MacDonald and her 32-year-old husband Kenneth, former Rutgers football star, have been separated since February, when he filed a divorce suit charging her with adultery with a Brooklyn, N. Y., psychiatrist, said Nathan Allyn, acting chief of Bergen County detectives.

There are about 300,000 accidents to human eyes each year in the United States.

A Scotch Crosby Visits Ireland

A scotch crosby visits ireland

DUBLIN

The first thing that strikes you about the Irish is that they are Irish — a whole broad green land full of Barry Fitzgeralds. In case Barry Fitzgerald ever wears out, there's lots more where he came from. The first man I laid eyes on in Dublin must have been his brother or, at very least, a close cousin.

John Crosby

The Irish have always been noted for a certain charming indifference to facts which don't fit into the framework of their national prejudices and I was a small example of this. They refused to accept the fact that I am not of Irish descent.

When I was in London, the Irish Travel Agency phoned to say they heard I was going to Ireland and to ask whether I proposed to visit relatives. I explained that my forebears were Scotch, not Irish, but thanks anyway. There was a horrified pause at the other end and then: "Oh, but there are lots of Crosbys in Ireland. You must be related to some of them." I said no, I'm afraid I wasn't and rang off.

THE NEXT MORNING the Irish Press Agency phoned and I had to go through this all over again. Again I was told there were lots of Crosbys in Ireland. Well, I said, there was going to be one more Crosby in Ireland in a short time but he was not going to be an Irish Crosby, he was going to be a Scotch Crosby and I devoutly hoped the Scotch didn't mind.

This did no good whatsoever. The moment I landed in Ireland I was whisked off the airplane and taken to Ireland's lone radio station to be interviewed. I am not at all sure to this very day why the Irish wanted to interview me and I'm reasonably sure the Irish don't know either.

The announcer who conducted the interview had no idea who I was or what I did or even what my name was. Kept calling me Crosley.

THERE WAS a preliminary bit of sparring in which we laid out topics of conversation. We laid aside the topic of Irish descent. I suggested that we talk about the Irish character. He suggested that we talk about the Irish character. We agreed that the Irish character was a fascinating subject.

Then he asked me what I thought of Irish radio. I said I thought it was fine. He asked me what I thought of Irish television. I said I thought it was fine. He asked me what I thought of Irish drama. I said I thought it was fine. He asked me what I thought of Irish music. I said I thought it was fine.

He was a little disappointed that I had so little to say on the Irish character. I was a little disappointed that he had so little to say on the Irish character.

THE INTERVIEW was a disaster. I was a disappointment to him and he was a disappointment to me. He was a disappointment to the Irish people who had counted on me to tell them what I thought of the Irish character. I was a disappointment to the Irish people who had counted on him to tell them what he thought of the Irish character.

THE NEXT DAY I was taken to the Abbey Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Gaiety Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Olympia Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors.

I was taken to the Gate Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Queen's Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors.

I was taken to the Pike Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Eblana Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors.

I was taken to the Theatre Royal to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Gaiety Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors.

I was taken to the Abbey Theatre to see a play. I was taken backstage to meet the actors. I was taken to the Gaiety out a schedule which, if it had been adhered to, would have taken roughly four hours to get through. Then I discovered the interview was to last five minutes.

The interview began. What was I doing in Ireland? Well, to be quite honest about it, I was a little dim about this myself. If my thought processes were at all well ordered, I would be in Edinburgh, looking up Scotch Crosbys, rather than in Dublin. I stumbled badly here and the announcer went on to the next question. How did I like Ireland? Well, I said, I just got here. It was dark outside.

Next question: What did I propose to do in Ireland? That was a

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Mr. B. visited the office to discuss his auto insurance. "Now that I've got my car paid for, just drop the Collision and Comprehensive coverage. All I'll need is public liability and property damage," Mr. B. said.

Earl J. Andrews

"It might seem like you should take a chance on collision because you don't owe any money on your car. Frankly, several well-to-do clients have taken this attitude for awhile," I replied.

"What do you mean 'for awhile'?" asked Mr. B.

"I mean that it only takes one accident until they see that collision insurance is a good idea. With modern streamlining, it costs a lot to repair the damages from even a minor accident. $200 to $400 is not unusual. One accident of this kind costs you more than several years' collision insurance. Why take the full risk? Merely stand the first $50 or $100 damages,and let our company pay the rest."

I paused, then added, "Also you can force more prompt settlement if another car hits you. Because the other company knows yours will force their hand if necessary."

"Sounds reasonable," Mr. B. remarked. "Go ahead and write it up right."

Red Traffic Light

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Some days, no matter what street corner you come to, the traffic light is always red.

And so it was this day. It was dusk. I was walking home along Second Ave., and had the dreamlike feeling of seeing the death of the human race . . . Everything was noisy or shabby or ugly, except for a light or two high in a skyscraper.

"This is New York City," I thought. "A few tall spires in a mire, and millions of faces made out of fog."

I came to a street corner. . . and the light turned red. A cab whizzed around the corner. The driver leaned out and cursed a pedestrian.

The sidewalk was lined with second-rate antique shops, full of sad merchandise. . .things people now dead once thought beautiful, things the people they left them to sold as junk. A sign in a window said: "Old comic books—5 cents." The last refuge of the nickel.

I came to a street corner. . . and the light turned red. The stinking trucks rumbled by. . . all going one way toward the night. . . like dying elephants groaning through a cobblestone jungle to a hidden graveyard.

A small boy sat alone on a curbstone. He watched the parade of truck-elephants with the blank stare of one bored young with the circus of life. . . dead eyes in a face of paste.

I came to a street corner. . . and the light turned red. Over to the left loomed the luminous United Nations Bldg., . . . a word of woe in a world of windows. . . 30 stories in towering glass, still looking for a happy ending. . . and the sun going down.

Up a side street stood a big tin garbage can. A man in blue overalls lay with one arm around it, his face turned down, his sprawling legs stretched out moveless on the sidewalk . . . was he dead, or sick, or only drunk? . . .In this honeycomb of hurry few pause for a fallen bee.

I came to a street corner . . . and the light turned red. Two men, both deaf mutes, stood arguing angrily, calling each other names in sign language. . . making figures of hate with flying fingers. . . and what could they find to fight about in their soundless world? . . . Love or pride or money?

A girl hung on her father's hand, and whimpered. "But why can't I have it, daddy? Why?" . . . All things alive crying for something they can't have. . . Which hurts the most, a tadpole or a whale? . . . A nurse in a white uniform hurried by, late to duty in a hospital where every day dawns on 500 people so sick the doctors can only say, "It's fifty-fifty" . . . A lost dog belly-groveled nervously on the pavement as three ragged urchins taunted it.

I came to a street corner. . . and the light turned red. The dirty windows in vacant tenements had the film of dying eyes. . . a frowsy middle-aged wife bawled out her husband in a high, whining voice that neither of them listened to . . . when she finished, he went into the saloon anyway.

I came to a street corner. . . and the light turned green. . . and it shone green at all the other corners on the way home, and the air had a lilac smell.

Reds Choose Wrong Box

WASHINGTON (AP)—A social organization of Coast Guardsmen, it develops, holds the post office box to which Korean Communists urged that peace appeals be addressed.

"Tell the folks back home to write Post Office Box 574, Washington, D. C." was one of the things Red loudspeakers blasted across the Korean fighting front Saturday.

But Daniel Ring, attorney for the Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers Association, U. S. Coast Guard, said yesterday:

"If they had gone all over the country to find a post office box the owner of which was more unfriendly to the Reds, they couldn't have done a better job."

No one seemed to know why the Reds picked that particular box. At any rate, Ring said, no peace appeals have yet turned up in it.

Farm Real Estate Values Slack Off

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farm real estate values dropped 2 per cent between last Nov. 1 and March 1, the Department of Agriculture reported today.

The department said declines were sharpest in the Western states, but that decreases were more widespread than any four-month period since July-November, 1949.

The index of average value per acre for the country as a whole dropped to 209 as of March 1. This was 2 per cent below last November and 1 per cent below a year earlier. The years 1912-14 represent 100 in the index.

Nation's Steel Production Rises Again

CLEVELAND (AP)—The nation's steel production increased again last week, Steel magazine said today while predicting "buyers will have to pay" higher prices in the future.

The metalworking journal said plants producing ingots and steel for castings operated at 100.5 per cent of their rated capacity last week, an increase of one point. That amounted to 2,270,000 tons of ingots and steel for castings.

"Steel's" weighted index on finished steel remained unchanged at 181.31.

The cost of steelmaking grades of scrap went down $1 to $41.67.

"Steel" said price hikes announced so far have been on "extras," prices charged for special sizes or kinds of steel.

How much the base price would go up will not be known for several weeks, the magazine continued. That will come "probably when producers can better appraise their cost position in the light of whatever wage settlement stems from impending negotiations with the steelworkers union."

Cattle not kept for milking purposes in the United States numbered 56,817,000 in 1953 compared with 52,207,000 in 1952.

Report Little Done On Race Relations

NEW YORK (AP)—Two major civic organizations say federal and state governments did "little worthy of note" during 1952 to reduce religious and racial inequality.

The American Jewish Congress and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said mob violence against minority groups continued to increase during the past year.

Civil rights developments were assessed by the two organizations in a 151-page report, released yesterday, on their fifth annual survey of group relations.

Nothing New About Stupidity

If the pundits can be taken at their word, Americans should be frightened about the stupidity of American statesmen who will be no match for the Kremlin's smart operators in a peace campaign.

Its the opinion of the pundits that the knuckleheads in striped pants, hard collars and homburg hats will be no match for their counterparts in Russian diplomacy — or any foreign diplomats.

The thick-headed Yankees, according to the pundits, will fail to take the sage advice of the best brains available, i.e., the brains of the pundits. The result will be utter ruin for the American way of life.

The foreigners will argue circles around the Americans. Russians will talk them into throwing away their guns, demobilizing their military forces and fumbling into Worldwide Depression II, which will be even more fearful to comtemplate than World War III.

In short, diplomacy cannot be trusted for the simple reason — and this is still being quoted from the pundits — that Americans are no match for foreigners.

But the historic truth is, Americans never have been a match for wily foreigners. They have been out-maneuvered, out-slickered, hoodwinked and shoved to the wall throughout history, to hear the pundits tell it.

Beginning with the Revolution and coming up through the French and Indians wars, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and World Wars I and II, the United States would have been better off if it had taken the advice of the pundits. Unfortunately they never agreed on anything, except that the thick-headed dolts who called themselves diplomats were always wrong.

Yet, two such dolts — Robert R. Livingston, minister to France, and James Monroe, special envoy—stumbled into the Louisiana Purchase on April 30, 1803, just 150 years ago. The pundits said that was the bonehead play to end bonehead plays and were in favor of throwing President Thomas Jefferson out of office.

Bureaucracy's Web

By Raymond Moley

Agency's Struggle for Survival Traps Unwary

The arguments presented by the expiring Small Defense Plants Administration for a continuation of some agency for small business are an excellent case study of the efforts of bureaucracy to avoid the economy ax.

They also show vividly the tendency of Congress to set up agencies that duplicate the work of other agencies. In a release on April 15, by the SDPA, a number of those arguments are listed.

The agency has, it says, put into operation "a vigorous, basic program which is doing much to safeguard the legitimate interests of small business."

The implication here is that the Department of Commerce and the RFC have somehow been the servants of big business alone.

In Jesse Jones' remarkable book, "Fifty Billion Dollars," it is shown how deeply concerned the RFC was throughout its history with all sorts of businesses. The sums lent to business were in some cases almost unbelievably small, and the companies helped could hardly have been smaller and exist at all.

The SDPA claims that there is a future need, which presumably it could fill, to exercise in behalf of government authority "to devote more effort to small business in non-manufacturing industries, retail and distribution trades."

This sort of thing has been a major concern of the Department of Commerce since its creation. What "more effort" would be, it is difficult to understand.

The SDPA says it has been giving valuable help in solving problems "of equipment, facilities and materials." But the National Production Authority does that. Anything that the SDPA did was mere duplication.

The report goes on to say that the SDPA aids small firms to get loans and gives the number of firms which have gotten loans from the RFC on its recommendation. This is absurd.

The RFC is responsible for determining why and to whom it will make loans. It is responsible for its own investigations. Banks will do their own investigating regardless of recommendations.

If the federal government is supposed to set up agencies to recommend to other agencies, there will be no end of bureaucracy. Next we shall have some congressman trying to set up an agency to recommend to the recommenders.

The SDPA reports speaks of the called "certificates of competency." But since the agency cannot guarantee anything, it is hard to see what such certificates are worth. This is another case of recommending.

The SDPA reports pseaks of the fact that 90 per cent of business enterprises are small and that 8 per cent of them went out of business in 1952. This was "much below the average for the past decade."

Are we to assume that the SDPA was responsible for the better showing? A better assumption is that times were better.

Unless the government proposes to keep all incompetents in business at the expense of the tax-paying competents, there will always be failures.

And yet, despite such evidence of duplication and futility, Sen. Thye and Congressman Hill have submitted bills to continue that sort of thing. These statesmen are Republicans. And the Republican party promised economy and less socialism!

Eiffel Tower Paint

PARIS (AP)—The Eiffel Tower — which even Parisians consider "the awful tower" —is getting a new paint job, at a cost of $86,000. It will take three years to coat the 984 foot landmark, which drew 1,250,000 visitors in 1952. It is being painted with a blend of orange and brown.

New Dental Filling

NEW YORK (AP)—A new plastic dental filling material that does not need heat to harden and does not dissolve or waste away is said to be the biggest advance in dentistry in half a century. These plastic materials, known as self-curing or hardening resins, are still in the experimental stage. Dr. George C. Paffenbarger, chief of the American Dental Association research staff at the National Bureau of Standards, says that "not since silicate cement was introduced 50 years ago has any material made such an impact on operative dentistry."

Red Cross Work Impoverished Founder

On May 8 the Red Cross world will pay homage to Jean Henri Dunant, Swiss founder of the International Red Cross. That date marks the 125th anniversary of the great humanitarian's birth. It will be noted by appropriate ceremonies in most of the 71 nations of the world which have national Red Cross Societies.

Although he died as recently as 1910, there are great gaps in the world's knowledge of Dunant — and there is no adequate explanation of the selfless zeal for the welfare of others which drove him to bankruptcy and years of derelict living in the capitals of Europe.

The son of a prosperous middle-class Geneva family, Dunant led an uneventful life until the summer of his 31st year. Then chance wrote an article about him for a widely read European magazine. The news that he was still alive burst like a bombshell, for the Red Cross movement and the Geneva Conventions he had fathered had grown into powerful world-wide forces.

The International Physicians' Congress awarded Dunant a prize of 5,000 francs. The dowager empress of Russia granted him a generous life pension. The stigma of bankruptcy was removed. And in 1901, when the first Nobel Peace Prize was awarded, it went jointly to Dunant and Frederic Passy, French economist and pacifist.

Despite the fame which finally came to him, Dunant refused to leave his hospital cell and clung to his frugal manner of living until his death on Oct. 30, 1910. Buried in Zurich, his gave is marked by a simple stone tablet. His real memorial is the world-wide Red Cross movement and each new victory in the age-long struggle to humanize war.

Operation Hip

The operation topping all others at the moment is "Operation Godfrey's Hip." Radio's and video's most famous performer is undergoing surgery for an old hip injury, and no joint in history has had more people praying for it. Never have surgeons been so nervous, and why not? Millions of radio and video fans are standing behind them looking over their shoulders and saying, "Doc, this had better be GOOD!" (Take it from us if the Redhead's hip doesn't come out okay it will be a matter for Congressional probes, U.N., NATO, all the medical societies and the Godfrey Marching and Chowder Clubs of the World.)

-:-

Seldom since the dawn of surgery have so many done so much worrying over one hip. "How's Godfrey?" is the season's household query. If prayers burn the ears of the beneficiary then Arthur's port and starboard stabilizers are glowing embers already. In his audience are the old, the young and the in-betweens, and they are "regulars," capable of no lukewarm loyalties. In a way a few hours' operation on Godfrey is not so terrible when you consider that he has had the audience in "stitches" for 20 years.

Any smart operator who will print up a few million anatomical charts of Godfrey explaining the exact trouble, with dotted lines showing the area covered, can make a fortune selling them on street corners.

The Godfrey hip has developed into a competitor of the Coronation. He may be laid up most of the summer and there will be demands for bulletins every hour on the hour. It seems Arthur was hit by a truck two decades ago, sustaining the injury which is now "kicking up." Since that time he has been hit by nothing but new sponsors and rising popularity.

Just what is the secret? The redhead lacks glamor, would win no Mister America contests, lacks genuine acting skill and employs gags that are far from sensational and would die on the vine of most comedians. But he is folksy and friendly, devoid of affectation or pose, free from ham content and lacks any suggestion of a swelled head.

He never looks down on his audience, is a master of timing and conveys the impression of an all-round good Joe.

The notable thing about him is that he has his audience in his hands at all times. They not only laugh with him but ahead of him. They start giggling as he launches his wise cracks and you have the phenomenal spectacle of people roaring at a joke while it is in mid-air.

Give Arthur a gag that 99 comedians could use without getting a smile and he will have his audience busting vest buttons before he even gets to the point. (No other comedian can make that statement.) He has been doing day

Furthermore, Napoleon Bonaparte was so much smarter than the Americans that he squandered the $15 million on a war with England which ruined him and forever removed the threat of trouble from that source.

The 150th anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase is as good a time as any to remember that pundits who tell Americans how stupid their diplomats are can be pretty dumb themselves.

Diplomats must have done something right since 1776, or there wouldn't be any reason to wonder what the State Department's next stupid mistake is going to be.

Time Will Tell

Three-dimensional television, like color television, now awaits a sufficient public demand to make its manufacture feasible.

A tentative three - dimensional process based on the stereopticon principle was exhibited in Los Angeles to the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters this week.

Thus, the future will bring literal images in color of everything from the setting sun beyond the Golden Gate to bathing-beauty cuties. There will be no limit.

Newspapers used to worry about this sort of thing, subject to their deepest and darkest fears about going the way of the blacksmith shop and the 15-cent shave. But they don't worry any more. They turn philosophical. They survived the auto, and they survived radio, to everybody's surprise.

Time, they muse, takes care of everything. it even takes care of time. When life consists of images on a screen, if that's what lies ahead, newspapers will still be needed, if only to tell the televiewers what they missed when they fell asleep. They will still sleep, and they will still work, to meet the pageants on their television sets.

Ludwig's Forecast

In 1948, Emil Ludwig published a brief biography of Joseph Stalin. The work was duly noted as a typically thorough product of a famous biographer.

Reread today, one conclusion in particular stands out — Ludwig's belief that Stalin's experiences as a young revolutionist had lent significant prejudices to his character as a Russian dictator. These, Ludwig surmised, might be his undoing.

"An outcast in his teens, and then an underground revolutionary," mused Ludwig, "how can he forget the technique of conspiracies and turn into a mellow sage? I do not believe that Stalin actually wishes a third world war; but he will be constantly threatening, and we know nothing about the intentions of his successors, for we don't really know who they will be. Stalin's escapades of brutal forces in Eastern Europe show that this Tartar who, as a youth, enviously looked up to the Russians, has become more and more Russian. . .

"Radical ideas like over - stretched rubber bands must eventually contract . . . The staggering megalomaniac Russia of today will transform itself eventually into a state which has abolished tsars and dictators alike as, in past times, France did away with her kings."

A tart snap-back signed by 38 fellow workers of the opposite sex followed a remark here a few days ago that "women should wear tailored suits for all public appearances, except when formal gowns are customary."

The girls sniffed they'd been thinking regimentation might be on the way out after Stalin's death, and that regimentation is what they're fighting with frills and furbelows.

"Besides," they inquire with that attitude of wide-eyed innocence which can be attained only by women and baby sheep, "If we all wore tailored clothes we'd lose our charm, and then where would men be?"

Now it's clear why women favor frills and furbelows — to strive for individuality via a studied display of their anatomy which would be restricted if all women wore tailored suits.

To keep this argument from getting rough, nothing will be said about how wrong they are in assuming that achieving worthwhile individuality is possible for most women with the kind of dresses they can afford to wear to work.

Nor will anything be said about the over-hopeful assumption that more men will be attracted than will be repelled by a studied display of afore said anatomy, instead of the artful concealment made possible by tailored suits. As to where men would be, that is obvious. They'd be at work.

The rebuttal to this provocative statement of 38 beleaguered women will be confined to the basic issue, which is:

Should a working girl be thinking of anything while at work except getting her work done?

Rosie the Riveter is a riveter, not man-bait.

Tessie the Typist has all she can do to hold down erasures.

Lo the Poor Working Girl has won the right to demand equal pay for equal work, but will never get it until she leaves all her thoughts of man huntig at home with her memory book and hope chest.

Efficiency on the job and hopes of matrimony do not mix, as all bosses know and all articulate bosses moan and groan about.

The pursuit of a livelihood and the pursuit of happiness do not go together.

That, ladies, is why you should wear tailored suits to please the boss and wear what you darned please to please the men—you hope.

Snare the guy at the beach on weekends. Bug his eyes with your day-off costume. Bowl him over with your svelte appearance at the dance. Be cute and frilly at picnics. Do what you please but not while working. The boss has bigger fish to fry.

Men are too busy working even to want to be bothered during working hours—and they are bothered, no matter how sternly they set themselves against it, when the working girl turns up as though dressed for a canoe ride in the Gay Nineties.

Most of the men can't even swim.

CROSSTOWN By Roland Coe

"I know I don't have to give her a wave set and manicure, Miss Oglethorp—but she'd upset the whole ward if I didn't!"

placed him at the scene of the most terrible conflicts in modern history — the battle of Solferino in Italy.

On June 24, 1859, the forces of the French emperor Napoleon III and King Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia defeated the army of young emperor Franz Joseph of Austria after a day-long struggle that left 40,000 dead and wounded in its wake.

Horrified by the carnage and by the sufering of the wounded for whom there was little organized help, Dunant threw himself wholeheartedly into the recruitment of 300 volunters to minister to the needs of the wounded.

Back in Geneva, the young banker could not forget the horror of what he had seen and experienced. Three years later, he set it down in a short pamphlet—Un Souvenir de Solferino—and proposed, for the first time, that voluntary aid societies be formed in each country to care for the victims of war and disaster.

Dunant's idea received wide public acceptance and the backing of the Geneva Welfare Society. To carry it to reality, he devoted most of his time to the difficult task of convincing governments that his plan was practical.

He traveled from country to country — cajoling, arguing, pleading. At last, in October 1863, an international conference was held in Geneva with 17 nations represented. This meeting formalized Dunant's idea and 10 months later a diplomatic conference produced an international treaty embodying the idea that was signed by 12 governments.

The Red Cross movement and the principle of the neutrality of military medical forces was launched.

But the effort had taken its toll of Dunant's personal welfare. His neglected business going from bad to worse, he was declared bankrupt. Friends and relatives who had lost money in his financial enterprises scorned him. His Red Cross associates feared that the scandal of his bankruptcy would damage the fledgling organization. Dunant disappeared from sight.

Suddenly, during the Franco-Prussian War he reappeared briefly in Paris and his plans for a French welfare society and a neutral city for the exchange of war-wounded received the favorable attention of the Empress Eugenie. Then he disappeared again —a forgotten derelict.

In 1889 a Swiss schoolteacher found Dunant — a fragile, embittered old man — living at Heiden on Lake Constance. Glad to kep him out of sight, his family had provided a miserly pittance. Almost incoherent, Dunant never told where he had been or what he had done in the intervening years. He asked nothing from life and was well-satisfied with a simple cell in a small hospital.

A Swiss journalist learned of Dunant's whereabouts in 1895 and

Do you wake up feeling as if you've just been sandbagged with a sock full of chloroform? Do you always arrive late for work?

You do? Then have courage, friend — it's all a question of temperature. The best time to work varies with all of us.

Scientists have established that how we feel when we wake and how we behave during the day is geared to the question of how hot our body is.

We are indebted for the information to Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, Chicago University physiologist, who has divided us into types on the basis of variations in body temperature.

Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, but it may vary during the day by as much as three degrees.

When temperature is high, mental alertness and drive are high too. When temperature is low, we are dull and listless.

So Dr. Kleitman gives us these three types — and I leave you to decide your own:

Morning type: This is the (to me) objectionable individual who wakes up with his heating full on. He is full of energy and punch, has a distressing habit of fetching people like me resounding thumps on the back.

He reaches full power around noon and gradually cools off through the afternoon, being reduced to a heap of damp ashes at night.

Into this general category comes Noel Coward. When he is working on a book or a play, he gets up at six in the morning, writes until noon, relaxes or paints in the afternoon, goes to bed about 10 o'clock.

Evening type: a charming and much-misunderstood fellow.

Getting up is a penance accompanied by piteous groans. He goes through the post-breakfast period glassy-eyed, bumping into tables, sitting down the second a chair takes him behind the knees. By noon, however, he begins to catch alight, and by late afternoon is burning smoothly, ready to glow far into the night.

Slow starts are Bebe Daniels and her fellow script-writers, Bob Block and Bill Harding. They don't feel too good in the morning, but they have been known to work from around noon one day until 11 o'clock the next. "We have tried to work earlier," Bebe said, "but our brains just don't work at full power until later in the day."

The paragon has a built-in power cut. His stoker sends him away to a hot and early start, cools him of in the middle of the day, then builds up the fires again for late afternoon and evening.

Lord Brabazon is an orthodox example of this type. He can start work at seven in the morning, knock off in the afetrnoon — "I cannot work in the afternoon and I hate trying to" — and then carry on from about tea-time until one in the morning.

ious example is the lord mayor of London, Sir Rupert de la Bere, who breakfasts at 7 a.m., then plunges joyously into a 16-hour or 17-hour day, with no noticeable cooling-off. He admits to a "second wind" at about 8 p.m.

Sir Rupert handsomely conceded, however, that the paragon type has his problems, too. "What's the good of being ready to do business at seven o'clock in the morning, if there's nobody to do business with?" he complained.

Sir Rupert suggested an answer to this problem. Make everything cheaper early in the morning, he said. "Put up the prices later. Hit the sluggards in their purses."

Speaking as a sluggard, I can tell him it wouldn't work at 7 o'clock in the morning I'd rather be out of pocket than out of bed.

Marion County History Brevities

By EDNA S. DUTTON

The early pioneer of the county had to be his own architect and carpenter. The usual height of the cabin from floor to loft was six or seven feet. The gables were formed by shortening the logs gradually at each end of the building and on the topmost of these was laid the ridge-pole, the other logs for the roof being laid parallel with the sides of the house and two and a half feet apart as the gables were raised. On these logs or poles were laid the clapboards, "rived" for the purpose with a "frow." A frow was an iron blade fixed to its handle at a right angle and this was driven into bolts of nicely splitting oak with a mallet. The clapboards, laid on shingling style, were held by weight poles instead of nails, the poles being kept in place by sticks of wood called "knees." There would not be a nail or any metallic thing in the whole building.

Cottage Doomed

WEXFORD, Ireland (AP)—The tiny thatched cottage where Michael Fenelon fathered his 63 children is to be pulled down. Local authorities have ruled it unfit for habitation. Michael married at 17. He had 25 children by his first wife, 18 by his second and 20 by his third. He died in 1900, aged 99. More than 250 of Michael's descendants still live in Wexford. Others have settled in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Boston. Still more live in Australia and South Africa. The cottage is in Wexford's Black Cow Lane. Once 43 of Michael's children gathered there for a Christmas dinner.

Slogans

By George Sokolsky

When the British or the Russians start a campaign in this country, there are always Americans to take up the slogans. When it is done for the Russians, it is subversive. But when the propaganda is to help the British, then the names are important and the organizations are outstanding.

SOKOLSKY

For instance, at the present time the British are advocating the virtual abolition of the American tariff because that would help them, the British. The argument ought to be stated with great simplicity, namely, that the British want more trade — they add "not aid" to the slogan but that has not yet appeared in the facts.

-:-

IF THE BRITISH want more trade, all we need to do is to abolish our tariff, let in their cheaper goods manufactured at lower wages, subsidized by American aid.

The Committee for Economic Development was originally founded by Paul Hoffman, the Marshall Plan almoner, who now heads the Fund for the Republic to which the Ford Foundation contributed $15,000,000 to find out why Communists are being investigated by congressional committees.

The CED has come out with an expensively printed brochure to convince Americans that they ought to let European, meaning British, goods come in on a lower tariff.

Then Henry Ford II delivers a free trade speech. Now comes David Rockefeller, senior vice president of the Chase National Bank, with a speech entitled "Toward Stable Prosperity in the Free World."

FIRST OF ALL, we need to define the term "the Free World." This is one of those loose expressions devised to give an impression that something exists which does not. Everybody uses it because it sounds good.

Actually, except for the Benelux effort and the Schuman Plan, there is no unity of economic action among the non-Soviet countries. They are competing against each other in the markets that remain to them.

If there is any unity of perspective, it is to drive the United States out of markets whereever possible, not only by lower prices, partially subsidized by American aid, but also by a continuing anti-American propaganda.

David Rockefeller, in a speech, said:

"The free world is now in a better position than at any time in the postwar period to move toward freeing trade and making currencies convertible. Nevertheless, there remain controls and restrictions which continue to hamper international trade and commerce. These must be dismantled in order to expand world trade and production. Notably, United States tariffs and trade restrictions must be reduced drastically and, in the dollar deficit areas, monetary reserves should be strengthened and internal inflation must be curbed."

THIS IS in line with the British proposals to our government made by Churchill and Eden when they were in this country. They did right to make the proposals because they were serving their country. But that does not mean that Americans need to accept them unless it serves the United States.

Is the United States in a position to reduce its tariff drastically, to eliminate trade restrictions, to abolish the "By American" Law, to underwrite the British pound without lowering wages, reducing the number of Americans employed, and without lowering the American standard of living?

No evidence has yet been produced to show that this is possible. What has been shown is that it would be a good thing for European exporting countries if this were done. And it would be a good thing for them, up to the moment that we moved into another depression. Then it would embarras them as all aid to Europe would have to cease.

THEREFORE, while from the short-sighted view, the destruction of the defenses of the American economy might aid Great Britain, in the long view it could be a disaster for all.

Mr. Rockefeller also said:

"We can't hope for military strength and political unity unless we can develop an economic policy that will produce rising living standards throughout the free world."

The facts are that we have actually been pouring billions of dollars of the earnings of the American people into Europe and Asia under the Marshall Plan, European military aid, Point Four, the subsidies to Germany and Japan — money that will never be returned to us.

How much more must we do before we go broke? David Rockefeller might read, to advantage, the Economic Legacy, which George M. Humphrey, secretary of the treasury, issued recently as a speech. That balance sheet is not very encouraging.

Flower Expert Is Garden Club Unit Luncheon Speaker

What others are doing in the way of beautifying their cities and countries with so little, is a challenge to garden clubs of this country in the opinion of Mrs. Arthur E. Burkett of Willoughby, guest speaker at the May Day luncheon of the House and Garden Unit of the Marion Garden Club, Friday at Hotel Harding.

Less advanced nations with so little to work with, are doing more in the way of beautifying their homes, parks and cities through the planting and cultivating of flowers and trees, then we who have everything in the world with which to bring beauty to our homes and cities, she indicated.

Mrs. Burkett, who is horticultural advisor at the Cleveland Garden Center, knows what is being done and the results attained by flower growers of many lands for she has just returned from a trek around the world, visiting some of the most beautiful and unusual gardens, parks and homes. The hostess group shared their program with members of other Garden Units and guests.

The Ballroom was a miniture indoor garden with spring flowers everywhere. May baskets, fashioned of large garden hats in pastel colors, and filled with tulips, jonquils, flowering almonds, Iris and other garden bloom, were on the U-shaped table and some unusual flower arrangements brought by the speaker were on the stage.

Mrs. Burkett gave her audience a brief lesson in judging by asking them to help her score an all - white arrangement of snapdragons and other spring bloom, in a container which once decorated the top of a base-burner stove, a brilliant bouquet of tulips, gladioli, Iris and mountain ash, and another of branches of the horse chestnut tree, skunk cabbage and red tulips. Containers were a large bowl brought from Damascus and a wash basin used by the Moslems. She also had with her a pottery vase with fruit of the palm foliage and a Moslem pitcher.

In her talk Mrs. Burkett urged the women to use their own imagination and to reflect their own personality in arranging their flowers. She also urged them to interest others in beautifying parks and streets through the use of flowers. She told of the interest of women in the many countries visited, in what American women are doing and termed American women leaders. She suggested correspondence with women, particularly in Australia and New Zealand, as a friendly gesture and a way to learn what others are doing with flowers. In addition to her talk Mrs. Burkett showed colored slides of the many places visited. She was accompanied here by Mrs. Alvin Tyler of Willoughby, who assisted in showing the pictures.

Mrs. Paul Williams, president of the club, extended a welcome and the program was in charge of Mrs. William Hutchman, program chairman. Decorations were by Mrs. Homer R. Waddell, Mrs. H. G. Duhamel and Mrs. Paul Williams, and Mrs. Carl Danner, chairman, and members of the social committee were in charge of luncheon arrangements.

Against Mossadegh

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Labor party leader Muzzafar Baghaie has denied charges he was connected with a murder plot to unseat Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's government. He demanded a prompt airing of the case in Parliament.

A government communique Saturday said the kidnap-slaying of National Police Chief Gen. Mahmood Afshartus last month was part of a scheme to overthrow Mossadegh and make Baghaie government chief.

Baghaie, immune from arrest since he is a Parliament member, told reporters yesterday the accusations must be submitted to the full Majlis (parliament), which has the sole power to life his immunity.

Government failure to make the charges in Parliament, said Baghaie, would be an admission they are false.

Tests to Be Held at Bikini

Believe U.S. Ready With Super Hydrogen Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—The next series of atomic tests in the Pacific probably will include hydrogen explosions of unprecedented magnitude.

Using knowledge and materials tried out cautiously in two previous series involving "thermonuclear" experiments—the most recent of which reportedly produced the mightiest manmade blast so far—scientists and military men are setting the scene for what is expected to be a still more awesome test shot or shots.

The majority of the comparatively minor-scale explosive tests of devices and weapons now under way at the Nevada Proving Grounds apparently represent preliminary work for forthcoming experiments in bigscale explosions of nuclear fission and hydrogen fusion gadgets in the pacific.

Apparently convinced in the past two tests at Eniwetok Atoll that a hydrogen explosion can be produced, the efforts of nuclear physicists now are directed at (a) stepping up the force of the explosion and (B) detonating the hydrogen bomb with more economy in the use of fissionable material.

To create the heat and pressure needed for triggering a hydrogen device something like a standard atomic bomb explosion must be produced.

Material-wise, this is costly. And there are reasons to believe that the present heat-pressure requirements for touching of fa hydrogen explosion are greater than that which can be produced by a single atomic bomb.

Dr. W. F. Libby of the University of Chicago, in a report Saturday to the American Physical Society here, said there was a big increase in the atmosphere last November of the amount of tritium, a possible ingredient of H-bombs. He made no mention of H-bombs, but other scientists noted that the dates he cited coincided with atomic tests at Eniwetok.

The atmosphere normally contains only very minute quantities of tritium, a form of hydrogen. Libby said that between Oct. 14 and Nov. 17, the amount in the air tripled, and then gradually went back to normal. He said such an increase could be caused by a period of drought.

The Atomic Energy Commission a month ago made plain that Eniwetok Atoll, used for big-scale tests is necessary to "accommodate the rapidly expanding program of developing and testing new and improved nuclear weapons," said the AEC. It added that Eniwetok will remain the headquarters and principal operating base for the Pacific Proving Grounds.

Taken together, this suggested that Bikini, lacking the housing, laboratories, dock facilities and other permanent installations of Eniwetok, may be used for super-explosions which could damage or destroy facilities at the latter atoll.

Eisenhower Places Wreath on Statue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Amid a skirling of bagpipes, President Eisenhower placed a wreath adorned with the Cross of St. Andrew on the statue of John Witherspoon, only clergyman to sign the declaration of Independence.

The ceremony yesterday, across the street from the National Presbyterian Church, was arranged by St. Andrew's Society of Washington as a prelude to the annual "Kirkin' O' the Tartans."

The society's kilted bagpipe band led a colorful procession into the church, where the tartans were received and dedicated. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower went along to their accustomed pew.

Witherspoon, born a Scot, became president of the Princeton University in 1768 and was a member of the Continental Congress. He died in 1794.

Smeared in Germany, McCarthy Aide Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy Cohn, Sen. McCarthy's chief investigator, says he was the object of an attempted smear on a recent fact-gathering trip to Europe.

Cohn told NBC television interviewers last night that "certain elements within the State Department over in Germany" had him and Gerard D. Schine trailed. Schine is chief consultant for the Senate investigations subcommittee which McCarthy heads.

The object, Cohn said, apparently "was to feed all sorts of information and stories to the hostile press so they could smear us up a little bit." He did not say who he thought was involved.

400 Attend Ceremony

New School Building At Caledonia Dedicated

A crowd estimated at 400 gathered in the auditorium of the new Caledonia Elementary School Sunday afternoon for dedication and open house ceremonies.

The Rev. Dr. Karl P. Meister a Caledonia native, completed the dedicatory services with his address, "Important Trends of Our Day." He is now executive secretary of the Board of Hospitals and Homes of the Methodist Church with offices in Chicago, Ill.

Open house was observed following the dedication ceremony, with teachers showing the group their rooms.

A concert by the 40-piece Caledonia School band under the direction of Mrs. Paul Showers got the program under way at 2 p.m. The dedication ceremony began at 2:30 p.m. with the elementary school chorus under the direction of Mrs. Showers presenting two selections, "Lonesome Cowboy," a Mexican folk dance, and "Prayer Perfect," by Stensen.

D. T. Mills, Marion County superintendent of schools, gave the welcome address. Presentation of the school keys to Forrest Hipsher, president of the Board of Education, was made by Harold Steward of the Steward Construction Co., general contractor, and Harry Brumenshenkel of Mansfield, architect.

The new school, on which construction was completed in February, includes six large classrooms and a large combination gymnasium - auditorium in the center.

The new structure is located directly across from the old school building and was built at a cost of $250,000. The old building now will be used only for high school classes.

Soon playgrounds, swings, slides and other playtime facilities, along with athletic fields with facilities for baseball, basketball, volleyball, football and other sports will be placed in back of the building. Students are using a small playground area in back of the old building at present.

The auditorium and gymnasium in the new school has been used for basketball games, the Senior class play and other activities and the old and smaller gymnasium and auditorim is still being used for physical education classes and by various organizations and community groups.

Previously, high school and grade school students had been attending school in the old building. In addition, the second and third grades attended school in the Universalist Church at Caledoia. versalist Church at Caledonia. Day program was held Friday afternoon in the new building with grade school students taking part.

Auto Crashes Into Bridge

A Marion man escaped serious injury when his car struck a concrete bridge on Route 37 in western Marion County Sunday at 2 a.m.

Herbert W. Sink, 20, of 972 Bennett St., apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car, according to state highway patrolmen who investigated the accident. The southbound car veered off the right side of the road and crashed into the bridge, about a mile north of the Route 30-S intersection. The driver, who was traveling alone, suffered lacerations of the face, and right knee, but was not treated. The front of his car was demolished. The car was towed away by a wrecker.

Patrolmen are still investigating a one-car accident which occurred on Route 42, three miles south of Cardington, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

A wrecking crew which was called reported that the driver and a passenger said they were both from Cleveland and were returning there. They had left the accident scene by the time patrolmen arrived.

The car skidded off the right side of the road on a curve, came back onto the highway and crashed off the left side of the road into a ditch, tearing down 120 feet of farm fence owned by Leroy Pine of near Cardington. The front and left side of the car were extensively damaged.

Cardington; Henry J. Wallet, 35, of Los Angeles, Calif., reckless operation, fined $30 and costs by Mayor Don Healea at Cardington; Anthony Podruth, 35, of Miami Beach, Fla., speeding, forfeited $25 bond at Mayor Frank P. Sitler's court, Bucyrus.

Food Institute Will Also Feature Show of Fashions

The 1953 Gasco Food Institute opens Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Palace Theater.

The opening session, "Foods in the Fashion Range," combines a miniature fashion show with th cooking demonstration.

Wednesday at 2 p.m., another session, "United States of America," will be staged. The institute to which no admission is charged, is sponsored by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. in cooperation with local merchants.

Basic piece of apparel worn by the lecturer during the opening performance will be a cotton dress of brick red. Over the dress she will wear a brown coat of the same material. A novel accessory is a yellow cape-apron, also of cotton. Tied around the waist, it is a practical apron and thrown over the shoulders, it becomes a frilly cape. Other outfits to be shown include a coffee coat of Clokay and a buff colored overskirt of cotton lace that slips easily and attractively over the red dress.

Ohio's Fuel's local Betty Newton, Patty Cox, will demonstrate a saucy fly-away skirt that is really two skirts in one during the same performance. It is made with a double panel front, and the front panel can be untied and reversed to display a different color.

The institute manager will show something light and fancy in his selection of bow ties for those homemakers who should want to take home a fashion note for their husbands.

During the other session of the show, "United States of America," the costumes feature chartreuse, a color cited by fashion experts as an American original. The same session takes homemakers on a quick recipe tour of this country.

Three Sets of Twins in LaRue Senior Class

By DOLORES McCLURE

Come May 21 and commencement time for 30 LaRue High School seniors, and there could be some "double trouble."

Seems that there are three sets of twins in the small graduating class . . . an unusual occurrence which could cause some confusion when it's time to hand out diplomas. Which is which, or who's who

Pearl and Vearl Gamble's mother, Mrs. John Gamble Sr., says it's easy for her to tell her boys apart, but friends report that embarrassing mistaken identity episodes are frequent when the twins arrive on the scene.

The similarity ends right there, though, according to the Gambles who live on a farm near LaRue.

While Vearl tinkers with model airplanes and autos, displaying his mechanical ability, Pearl can only toss a bored look in his brother's direction. He likes farm work, however, and is deeply interested in agriculture and livestock.

Mr. and Mrs. Gamble are both employed at the Motor Products Corp. plant here, so a lot of the farm responsibilities fall on the twins' shoulders. They fix their own dinner in the evening and are quite adept at keeping the house clean. Their spare time and after-school hours are spent in the fields.

The 17-year-old twin boys are inseparable and have always been in the same classes at school. They formerly attended Mt. Victory School before moving to the LaRue area five years ago. The Gambles have two other sons, both married and living near LaRue.

The other two sets of twins, Bettie and Billie Daniels and Jessie and Josie Smith, agree that their likes and dislikes are pretty much in accordance.

The 17-year-old Daniels girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Daniels, of near LaRue, have been enrolled in commercial courses with their favorite subjects being typing, bookkeeping and shorthand. Billie plans to enter the hairdressing field, while her sister has just about decided to go into nurse's training. Bettie insists that they don't resemble each other; says her sister has lighter hair and blue eyes, while she has almost black hair and brown eyes. Although they differ in their opinions of what the well-dressed young woman should wear, they usually dress alike, to please their mother. The girls have five sisters and two brothers. One younger brother is at home, while the others are married.

Josie and Jessie Smith, foster daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith of LaRue, are pretty certain about the future. Jessie will be a June bride and her sister is looking forward to becoming a stenographer. The 18-year-old girls have always seemed to agree on everything. They both took commercial courses. They have two older brothers and two sisters living in Columbus and an older brother in the Navy.

Even one set of twins in a small graduating class, such as the one at LaRue, would be somewhat unusual, the faculty members agree, but with three sets of look-alikes, it's downright bewildering!

FLED RED CAPTIVITY. Valentin Gonzales, shown in Rome pointing to location of prisoner and slave labor camps in Russia, relates his experiences as a general known as "El Capesino" while fighting with Communist forces in the Spanish civil war. He said he lived in Russia after the war, became critical, was sent to Siberia, escaped and made his way to Tehran, Iran, and to Italy. He said thousands of Italian prisoners died in Red captivity, that Italians still are held there.

After the eruption of the volcano Krakatoa in 1883 a remarkable series of red sunsets appeared all over the world, believed to have been caused by the spread of volcanic dust in the atmosphere.

There are 10 qualifications to receive the award, among which are scholarship, attendance, and cooperation.

The Arion award for the senior who contributed most to vocal music in Galion High School was presented in April to Miss Patricia Durtschi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Durtschi, West Railroad St. The award was made when the glee clubs, choir and chorus were presented in concert.

Marvin Fogt is director of the band and the choral groups.

CROWN CAVALCADE — The PREDECESSORS of ELIZABETH II

No. 12: Edward III. Ruled England 1327-1377.

Edward III, from a drawing of his time. The Order of the Garter was inspired by his gesture toward an embarrassed female courtier.

Born: 1312, first son of Edward II and Isabella of France. Upon the forced abdication of his father, he was proclaimed king under the regency of his mother and her lover, Mortimer. They married him off at 16 to Philippa, a German princess. When Edward was able to assert his powers at 18, he sent his mother from court and had Mortimer executed. He resumed the warfare with Scotland and when the French intervened he attacked France, beginning what's known as the Hundred Years' War. The battle of Crecy, in 1346, proved one of the most decisive battles in history, for it established England as a continental military power. The longbow acquired from the Welsh and tactics similarly learned from fighting the Scotch made the English the victors. They were unable to assert their new power for seven years, owing to the Black Death. The plague killed one-third of the English population.

A gold noble, dated 1344, commemorating Edward's victory over the French naval forces at the battle of Sluys. The smaller English fleet completely destroyed the French armada.

The first major English literary figure, Geoffrey Chaucer, appeared in Edward III's reign. (From an early manuscript of his Canterbury Tales.) Another literary landmark of the time was the initial appearance of The Vision of Piers Plowman, a 15,000-verse satiric poem.

Find Few Defects During Pre-School Clinic, Is Report

Few serious physical defects were discovered among a record number of pre-school age Marion children examined at 12 pre-school clinics held Monday through Friday at elementary schools, Dr. M. M. Weinbaum, city health commissioner reported today.

Those defects showing the greatest frequency were dental defects abnormal tonsils, and a few hernias, he said.

He noted also that this year's 761 examinations topped last year's total of 596 by 165 for a record high.

The health commissioner also extended thanks to the Marion Academy of Medicine, Marion County Dental Society, Parent Teachers Association, and the public and parochial school systems for their "fine spirit of cooperation which made possible the success of the Pre-School Clinics."

All medical, dental and nursing services for the free clinics were donated by members of these organizations, he said.

The clinics are held each spring to discover and call to the attention of parents any physical defects of youngsters entering school the following fall.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alakline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Seek Five Political Scientists for Research

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Political Science Association is looking for five outstanding political scientists to become "congressional internes."

Here's the way it works, according to an association announcement yesterday:

By June 1 five applicants, preferably between 25 and 30 years old, will be picked for 10 months of intensive training. Each will have two months at the Library of Congress, four months on the staff of a member of Congress and four months on the staff of a congressional committee. They then return home to "spread the knowledge they have gained to others."

The stipend is $3,500 to $4,000, paid by the association.

The World Today

Grand Guessing Game

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little man was beginning to feel a little more at ease. For a while there after Stalin's death he had been excited.

That was the time of the grand guessing game, when everyone seemed sure the new mob in the Kremlin would be at one another's throat in no time.

Everybody had a theory. Malenkov was on shaky ground. Beria was on shaky ground. Molotov was low man on the totem pole.

Pretty soon, the guessing went, there'd be an awful struggle for power and maybe Russia would fly apart.

The little man really didn't expect that but it was the kind of thing he wanted to hear. He ate it up. But it didn't happen.

Now the little man is reconciled to the idea that maybe it won't happen and that Russia and the Communists may be here for a long time, intact.

But it made him start thinking. He was paying higher taxes on account of the Russians. He felt it was about time he found out something about these people who were costing him so much money.

He got a book on Russia. Every night after supper he sat on the sofa, tilted the lampshade just right, and for at least an hour read some of the history out loud so his wife could learn at the same time.

She was polite about it. She'd rather see a TV program. But this was an hour she felt she was spending in a good cause: giving her husband something to do.

She knew if he wasn't reading out loud he might be changing the TV program every five minutes and then she wouldn't be able to watch one all the way through anyway.

One hour of reading aloud took some of the bounce out of him. And maybe for an hour after the reading she could watch one program all the way through, till he got his bounce back.

He had a hard time getting started because it was the Communists who interested him. But he knew he might understand the Russian communists better if he knew something about the Russians before the Communists. After all, the Communists were Johnny-come-latelies in Russian history.

But going back to the very beginning was painful and embarrassing. He couldn't pronounce some of the names of those early Russian tribes which kept shifting around.

After a while everything straightened out and instead of the Russians moving every which way, they seemed to be moving in a straight line at last: they had a government.

They really didn't have anything to do with picking the government, even in those early days, any more than later on when the Communists came in and set up shop.

Pretty soon he was reading about Ivan the Great, back in the 15th century, and his endless war on Poland. He ran across a passage where Ivan said:

There could never be any real peace with Poland, only "truces in order to catch the breath."

He didn't think much of it while reading it. Later, lying awake in the dark and trying to go to sleep, he began to think of Ivan's heirs, the Communists, who succeeded where Ivan didn't: they took Poland without firing a shot after World War II. And they've been pushing everywhere else ever since.

The little man suddenly thought of what the Communists have been doing since Stalin died: talking about their pious and peaceful intentions. He wondered, lying awake in the dark:

Is this Ivan all over again?

He mentioned it to his wife the next morning at breakfast but she said she didn't remember that part about Ivan in the book.

He [illegible] he wondered if human nature ever changed, or rather, could the Russians ever change. Not the Russians themselves. The leaders. It was a big country and the Russian big shots always got big ideas.

He didn't know the answer. But he made up his wind the next time something happened and the guessing game began over here he'd take it with a grain of salt until he really saw a change, in the Russian leaders or their nature.

Inside Labor

Meany in Action

By Victor Riesel

The fast money hotshots who've disdainfully turned their union offices into personal fortunes and big businesses are being privately investigated and publicly demeaned by national AFL chief George Meany. He's letting them know that he didn't take over the Federation's leadership to lend any union anywhere respectable cover for any racket.

RIESEL

That day is over. The day is gone when unions hidden in the woodwork of the 70-year-old AFL can be used to muscle in on racetracks, bowling alleys, waterfront rackets, trucking shakedowns and garment shop partnerships and to run lucrative, high pressure labor "newspapers."

The husky George Meany isn't kidding. The day has come for a showdown with those wealthy "unknown" local labor leaders who are disgracing the national leadership — which is aware that American labor, like the rest of the nation, is now on trial before the world.

BLUNTLY, the national AFL leadership has told two unions, the AFL Auto Workers and the Longshoremen, they must clean out the convicts and indicated officials or be dropped from the AFL at the September convention, regardless of the possible loss of 150,000 members to the Federation.

At the same time each of the three members of the AFL anti-racket committee — Meany, William McFetridge, and Dave Dubinsky — has been policing his own bailiwick.

When Detroit goons picked themselves up a federal local charter and began muscling in on the legitimate Building Service Union there, Meany ripped the charter out of the hands of the hoods.

When the Postoffice began investigating charges that the veteran chief of the Detroit Federation of Labor, Frank Martel, had manipulated circulation figures, of the Detroit Labor News, of which he is editor, Meany dispatched a special investigator to that city.

When the second member of the AFL anti-crime committee, Building Service Union President William McFetridge, learned there were irregularities in some Detroit locals, he dumped the leader there.

McFETRIDGE discovered that a Ray Carroll, who ran not one but four Detroit locals, had taken loans from the union totalling $40,000. McFetridge called for a showdown.

Carroll ignored McFetridge's communications. No one was going to tell him what to do, not Carroll who ran locals covering race tracks, bowling alleys and some theaters.

This gave him an enormous take and he had connections. So Carroll disdained any query from his national office in Chicago. McFetridge then sent in auditors — who discovered that under this great big proletarian leader, this crusader, the union had charged double dues, had forgotten where certain records were and had not kept a proper accounting.

Carroll was suspended. So what. He organized his own independent union. And that's that. But he will have no AFL label if McFetridge or Meany have anything to do with it.

McFetridge and one of his vice-presidents, New York's Dave Sullivan, have been through these wars. They know the calculated risk of battling the goons who pinch quarters from charwomen, ushers, elevator operators and the other "little folk." But they say somebody has got to make a stand sometime and this is it.

NO LOCALS in their field will be run for the benefit of anyone but the membership. These men need public backing. Let's give it to them.

The third member of the anti-racket committee, the Ladies Garment Workers leader, David Dubinsky, has a more complex problem.

His field is infested with the toughest mobs of all, those who've bought political protection over the years— bought it from the highest political circles in the land. So Dubinsky has hired a special investigator to unravel the maze. Then he'll act.

Combined, these three men, and others on the high AFL council, are tackling the notorious and murderous waterfront.

Joe Ryan has been told to quit as the Longshoremen's president. This union must purge itself of the scores of thugs who hold six or seven jobs apiece in as many locals.

-:-

THESE MEN have made millions of dollars. For this loot they've fought it out at the na-cut in on a crusade must go, he says. This takes courage. And public support.

He has the first. He should have the second. This is everybody's fight!

QUICK ACQUAINTANCE

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (UP)— V. J. Ziegler, waiting in his doctor's reception room, saw a picture in a magazine captioned: "Can you identify this man?" The next day at his liquor store he saw the man in the picture. The man was holding a pistol and he emptied Ziegler's till.

OWU To Mark Centennial For Women

Monnett Week End To Include Drama, Conferring Degrees

Special to The Star

DELAWARE — The annual Monnett Week End at Ohio Wesleyan University this year will mark the centennial of the founding of the Ohio Wesleyan Female College and will be highlighted by an historical drama and conferring of honorary degrees on outstanding women graduates of the college.

Other major activities of the centennial celebration next Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be the coronation of two Monnett Queens, a style show, the faculty's presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and an all-college convocation.

The historical drama, "The Monnett Story," was written by Mrs. Ralph Kelly, of St. George, Va., who is a former member of the Ohio Wesleyan speech faculty. Presentations are scheduled for 8:45 p. m. Friday and Saturday.

"The Monnett Story" reflects on the changes which have have taken place in women's education since the Ohio Wesleyan Female College was established in 1853 in The Little Mansion in Delaware. Members of the speech and music modern dance group, are cooperating in production of the original departments and of Orchesis, the drama.

Ohio Wesleyan's Faculty Club will present "The Man Who Came to Dinner," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, at 8:30 p.m. May 7, 8, 9, and 12 in the Willis High School auditorium. Profits will go toward a faculty-sponsored student scholarship.

Saturday morning will be crowded with activities. The 700-man unit of the Air Force ROTC will pass in review at 9 o'clock on Selby Field before hundreds of visiting parents. Trick drills and the presentation of decoration and awards also are included in the program.

At 10:30 the colorful procession begins on the main campus preceding the coronation of the two Monnett Day Queens, the executive and judicial presidents of the women's student government, Patricia James, of Tuscon, Ariz., and Martha Bowman, of Greenville, respectively.

Immediately after the coronation honorary degrees will be conferred on four prominent Ohio Wesleyan alumnae.

The style show Saturday afternoon will feature original creations in clothing by women students in the Home Economics department.

Judge Florence Ellingwood Allen justice of the United States Circuit Court of Ohio since 1934, will speak at the annual Monnett Week End convocation at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday in Gray Chapel. Her topic will be "Women of the past and Present."

Rep. Hays Eyes Governorship

WASHINGTON (AP)— Democratic Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Flushing would very much like to run for governor of Ohio.

He's harbored that ambition for some time—and he's hoping Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche decides not to seek a fifth term.

If Lausche doesn't run again, Hays probably will seek his party's nomination next year.

He probably would be faced with the opposition of the state Democratic organization that still remembers the campaign he conducted last year to collect Democratic national convention delegates pledged to Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee for president.

In doing so, Hays fought the organization. It backed a favorite son, former U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland.

Hays has told friends he would welcome opposition by the organization, noting that anti-organization candidates have been notably successful in recent years.

Should Lausche not run again, Hays regards Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland as his potentially most serious opposition.

Home Circle Conducts White Elephant Sale

Mrs. Evelyn England had charge of a white elephant sale at the Friday night meeting of the Protected Home Circle in IOOF Hall.

Mrs. Dessie Carpenter presided, and one new member, Mrs. Arizona Petri, was obligated. Arrangements for a memorial service were discussed. Several members reported on the district convention held in Dayton on April 25.

Music during the meeting was furnished by Mrs. Mary Fout. Contests were enjoyed after the meeting.

POW to Get Key to City At Covington, Ky.

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The people here know nothing can match the thrill Sgt. Orville Mullins got Sunday when he hugged his mother for the first time since leaving for Korea—but they're determined to let the former prisoner of war know how much they think of him, too.

This afternoon, Mayor John J. Moloney will present the wounded fighter with a key to the city.

Sgt. Mullins and his widowed mother, Mrs. Pearl Mullins, then will head a motorcade through Covington streets, along which merchants plan to drape banners reading, "Welcome home, Orville."

Mrs. Mullins will wear a corsage, donated by a florist, and the sergeant will be given a portabl radio by members of the Latonia Businessmen's Association.

And the whole town will make darned sure the 26-year-old serviceman knows it is celebrating "Mullins Day" in Covington.

Mullins, who served five years in Europe before reenlisting in 1950, was in some of the bitterest fighting in Korea before Communist machine gun bullets ripped through his legs in August, 1951. He was taken prisoner and was just released by the Communists April 21, the first POW from the Greater Cincinnati area to be exchanged.

Sunday, the sergeant arrived by airplane at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, O., where his mother and family met him. He has three brothers and two sisters.

After examination was made on his infected legs at the base hospital, Mullins, his mother and family members climbed into two cars and sped to the modest Mullins home here.

Czech Govt. Proclaims Amnesty

Action Patterned After Soviet Decree; Oatis Not Mentioned

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—A second Communist satellite — Czechoslovakia — proclaimed an amnesty in the Soviet pattern today for lesser offenders, both civilian and military.

Radio Prague said the clemency decree, signed by President Antonin Zapotocky, went into effect today.

The broadcast made no mention of AP Correspondent William N. Oatis, arrested two years ago in Prague on charges of spying and now serving a 10-year jail sentence.

It seemed unlikely that Oatis would benefit from the decree. The Czech amnesty, like those proclaimed for the Soviet Union and for Communist Romania, specifically excluded all persons convicted of treason, espionage, sabotage or "crimes against the peace."

Such a provision will leave thousands still in Czech jails. Since the Communists seized power in 1948, most persons jailed have been convicted of one of those counts.

The new Soviet regime proclaimed the first sweeping Red clemency March 27 after Stalin's death. Romania followed suit April 4.

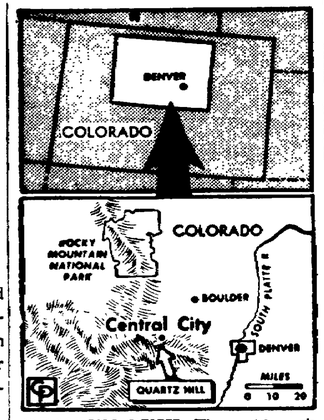
The Czech decree said immediate freedom would be given all youths serving sentences of less than a year, all pregnant women or women serving two-year sentences and with children under 10 years, all persons with serious or incurable diseases, all women over 50 and all men over 60.

Sentences of more than one year were reduced by two-thirds. Life terms were cut to 20 years and all fines up to 20,000 crowns ($400) imposed in addition to prison sentences were lifted. Many pending cases were ordered dropped.

Military offenders serving terms of less than one year will be freed after four months. Fines of 30,000 crowns were cut two-thirds.

The decree said the clemency was being ordered because "in the unhappy days in which President Klement Gottwald died, the Czech people demonstrated their unity and now have gathered firmly around President Zapotocky."

Observers here, however, believed the decree was designed to alleviate popular discontent resulting from a critical food shortage



URANIUM RUSH. The gold rush town of Central City, Colo., is preparing for another rush, this time uranium ore. Quartz hill, two miles south, where Madame Curie obtained the pitch-blende from which she extracted radium, reportedly contains ore assaying 3-4 per cent uranium oxide. The Belgian Congo uranium operation is profitable with ore one-tenth as rich. The AEC already has poured $72,000 into Quartz hill.

Cardington High Band to Present Concert Tuesday

The 50-piece Cardington High School band, under the direction of William Dowler, will present its annual spring concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the new school auditorium.

Special numbers on the program in addition to the band selections will be a selected number by a clarinet quartet composed of Patty Long, Joyce Underwood, Gloria Burggraf and Dorena Ruehrmund; trombone solo, "Concert-struck," Muhelfeld, by Franklin Curl, accompanied by Evelyn Frickle: "At the Console," Gustav Kelm, by a brass quartet composed of Jeanne Rengert, Richard Koon, trumpets, Charlotte Patterson, baritone, Lloyd Ruehrmund, trombone.

For the first portion of the program, the band will play "The National Anthem," Key, a march featuring majorettes Irma Mateer, Ann Boger and Joyce Aliga: "New Colonial," march, Hall; "Gavotte", Handel; "Dusty Dan," trombone novelty, Mesang; "Santa Fe Trail," Whitney.

The band will conclude the program with "Men of Ohio," march, Fillmore; "A Walking Tune," by Grundman: "March of the Majorettes," Simon; "Boogie Woogie Band," Bennett; "Pavanne," second movement of "American Symphonie No. 2," Gould; "National Emblem,' 'march, Bagley.

Tickets will be available at the door of the school.

Model Perches 7 Hours On Water Tower

Threatens Leap As Hundreds Look On; Finally Gives Up

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A pretty model kept hundreds of onlookers in suspense by perching atop a 140-foot water tower for seven hours and threatening to jump to her death.

Instead, she climbed down, sunburned from 80-degree weather, after her GI boy friend climbed an iron ladder and talked to her for more than an hour yesterday.

Dark-haired Mrs. Theresa (Terry) C. McKinney, 20, divorced mother of two small boys, climbed the tower at 7:45 a. m. Apparently she was upset by a broken romance.

"She used to climb it a lot when she was a kid,' said her brother Robert, 13, who saw her ascend the tower ladder. "She shouted that she wasn't coming down again—that she was going to jump."

He ran and notified a family friend, Eugene Houck, 19, who called police, then climbed the tower and pleaded with Mrs. McKinney for 45 minutes.

A minister, the Rev. Harold Longstreth of the Christian Missionary Alliance, then took a half-hour turn atop the ladder near where she clung to an aircraft beacon above the tanks conical roof.

As Houck made the ascent again, she screamed, "Dont come any closer!'

"I asked her what the trouble was," he reported after returning to the ground, "and she told me, 'I'm mad at the world. . . . Bob told me last night his mother doesn't want us to be married."

BOY BITTEN BY DOG

Five-year-old Paul Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gail Hart of near Marion, was bitten on the left arm and shoulder Friday afternoon by a dog, it was reported today by the Marion County sheriffs' office. The first test, Warner said, showed no indication of rabies. The boy was treated by a local physician.

Umphlett Stars as Boston Red Sox Whip Brownies, 14-5

Ex-Marsox Outfielder Leads Attack at Plate

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sportswriter

It wasn't so long ago that everybody was feeling sorry for Boston's Red Sox and Pittsburgh's Pirates. Those "poor" Pirates were a near-unanimous pick for the cellar while the "raggedy" Red Sox weren't picked much higher. But look at the two clubs today.

The Red Sox, with six victories in their last seven games, are the hottest team in the American League. They won their sixth straight yesterday, walloping the St. Louis Browns, 14-5, in the opener of their double-header, but were nosed out, 6-5, in the nightcap.

The Pirates, winners of five in succession, are the surprise of the National League. They pounded out an 8-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals to climb within a game of the first division. The Red Sox are in fourth place, hard on the heels of the league leaders.

What is the reason for this sudden reversal of form? Simple. The Red Sox have found the formula for winning on the road, something they haven't been able to do in years. The Pirates are combining good pitching with solid slugging, something they found impossible last year.

The Red Sox lost ground yesterday to the pace-setting New York Yankees, who rallied for four runs in the ninth to nip the Detroit Tigers, 6-5. Cleveland's second-place Indians advanced to within one game of the Yanks, taking two from Washington, 7-0 and 4-3. Philadelpia's Athletics moved into third place with a pair of triumphs over the Chicago White Sox, 4-2 and 10-6.

Brooklyn registered its sixth straight, edging out the Milwaukee Braves, 4-3. Philadelphia's Phillies deadlocked the Dodgers for first place in the National League, whipping the Chicago Cubs twice, 5-1 and 2-0. The scheduled twin bill at New York between Cincinnati and the Giants was rained out.

It took a three-run eighth-inning rally by the Browns to snap the flaming Red Sox' winning string. Roy Sievers struck the winning blow with a scoring fly ball after a walk, an error, Bob Elliott's single and Don Lenhardt's double had erased a 5-3 Boston lead.

Boston blasted out 17 hits to win the opener as rookie center fielder single to lead the Pirates' attack on three Redbird pitchers as 36-year-old John Lindell won his first game in the National League. The former Yankee outfielder who turned knuckleball pitcher permitted only four hits.

Pinch-hitter Irv Noren's two-run single followed by relief pitcher Art Houtteman's wild pitch climaxed the Yanks' winning outburst in the ninth against Detroit.

A two-run homer by Larry Doby gave Cleveland's Mike Garcia the margin of victory after Early Wynn had pitched a three-hit shutout in the opener over the Senators.

Southpaws Bobby Shantz and Alex Kellner teamed up to give the A's their double win. Shantz spaced eight hits for his third victory in the opener, helped by Allie Clark's two-run homer. Clark also batted in three runs in the nightcap that featured a seven-run second inning by Philadelphia.

After Robin Roberts of the Phillies had limited the Cubs to six hits in the opener for his fourth straight victory, Simmons, his southpaw pitching mate, bettered that performance with a five-hit shutout. Each now has a 4-1 record.

Junior Gilliam's seventh-inning single scored Don Thompson from second with the run that snapped a 3-3 tie and gave Brooklyn its victory over Milwaukee.

Bucyrus Wins Baseball Finale

GALION — Bucyrus High School Redmen by winning the finals of the sectional baseball tournament here Friday afternoon, over Mansfield will travel to Holgate Wednesday for competition in the district finals. The score, Friday was 3-2.

Danny Bumstead was the winning pitcher and Bowers caught. For Mansfield, Wright and McVicker were the batteries.

Bucyrus made three runs, six hits, and three errors, and the Mansfield team had two runs, two hits, and two errors.

The winners scored one run in the first inning and two in the seventh. Mansfield scored one run in the second inning and one in the fifth.

Bucyrus reached the finals by de-

SHORT SPORTS

By John Short

A note last week from Chuck Mather, coach of the Massillon High School football powerhouse, extended his congratulations to Marion on its new high school building.

Best wishes for a successful season next fall were sent to Pete Howison, a former classmate of Mather's at Ohio Northern University. The Massillon mentor says he would like to schedule a game with the Prexies. His note says, "Now that Marion has a new school I would certainly like to get them on our schedule. It seems to me it would be a good game for both of us."

SHORT

We don't know how Harding officials feel about such a game but we certainly would not want to set in on it. In fact, we wouldn't want to see more than about three Ohio High schools in action against the Tigers. With the exception of Steubenville, Alliance and Canton McKinley, we don't think any of Massillon's foes have any business on the schedule for next fall. Those foes include Mansfield and Fremont Ross too.

The football situation at Massillon is a year-round business to Mather as well as his charges. While the OHSAA sets a limit on the practice sessions, there's no law to stop conversation.

A visit to Mather's office and the Tiger stadium is all one needs to think of a frosty autumn evening and tricky reverses. Mather has his walls covered with slogans urging his boys to win or turn in their uniforms.

One sign hanging above the shower room entrance warns the gridders, "You have to work all week to play on Friday night." Another warns, "An off day usually follows a day off."

Mather's coaching philosophy is summed up by a banner line above

Native Dancer Seeks Revenge In Preakness

Derby Favorite Misses Chance To Prove Invincibility

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The aura of invincibility that surrounded Native Dancer through 11 successive victories was brushed aside by Dark Star in the 79th Kentucky Derby. But don't think the 3-year-old turf championship was decided in that race.

When the bay son of Royal Gem II hit the wire a good head in front of the Dancer after Saturday's mile and one-quarter run at Churchill Downs it proved only one thing—the Vanderbilt colt does not yet rank with the thoroughbred greats of American turf history.

But the margin of Dark Star's victory was so small the decision might well be reversed when the representative of Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable and the

Rosen in Cleanup Spot

Lopez Juggles Batting Order; Indians Win Two

CLEVELAND (AP) — Manager Al (The Juggler) Lopez was stringing along today with his latest innovation in the Cleveland Indians lineup.

Al Rosen, he said, will bat cleanup in Tuesday night's game with the champion Yankees. Larry Doby will bat fifth.

That's where he had this pair in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader with Washington, and it worked. Rosen got two singles, and Doby had a two-run homer that made the 4-3 Indian victory possible.

Lopez benched Doby in the first game, and put Rosen in the fourth, cleanup spot. Rosen has a double and two singles in that game, and the Indians won 7-0. The double victory moved Cleveland into second place.

While the improved batting gives the Indians more confidence to face the Yankees—it'll be Whitey Ford vs Bob Lemon—the pitching Sunday was a big factor, too.

For Early Wynn, the three-hitter he pitched in the first game was his 10th consecutive victory over two seasons and his third straight this year.

Jackie Jensen got two of the hits, a double and a single, and Eddie Yost's single was the other. Wynn himself contributed one run with a bases empty homer, off the loser, Con Marrero.

In the second game, Mike Garcia pitched well except for the first and fourth innings. In the first, when the Nats scored once, the Indians tied the game in the same inning.

After Washington scored one more in the fourth, Cleveland tied it again in the fifth inning. Doby's homer in the sixth made it 4-2, and the last Washington run was a homer by Jensen over the left field fence.

Tuesday night's game will be the first Cleveland - New York affair this year, and also the first time the Indians have batted against young Ford.

Green Camp, Area Baseball Teams In Tourney Action

Green Camp and other area teams are set for action in the Central District Class B baseball tournament at Columbus today.

Green Camp, Marion County titlist, goes against Columbus St. Mary at the Ohio State No. 2 diamond.

Mt. Gilead tackles Millersport at the No. 4 diamond and the same time Iberia meets Columbus Holy Family at the Columbus South diamond.

Radnor is scheduled against Reynoldsburg at the Columbus North field.

Games were set to get under way at 4 p.m. The tourney opened Friday and includes action today, Wednesday and Friday.

Green Camp won the county title by winning a play-off game from Pleasant, 4-3, at Prospect last fall. Both teams finished league play with 4-1 marks.

"We've got to love our work and it will make us good," is the last sign the gridders see as they leave the locker room for the playing field. Mather's own pet slogan hangs above his small cubby hole in the stadium. It tells the team and coaching staff that "accomplisment must be preceded by preparation. How we use today will determine how tomorrow will use us."

Columbus Drops Pair to St. Paul

By The Associated Press

St. Paul picked up a full game on runnerup Indianapolis Sunday with a double victory over Columbus while the Indians were splitting a pair of games with Louisville.

The leading Saints slipped by the Red Birds 5-4 in the first game as veteran Al Epperly turned in a neat relief job. Epperly throttled the Birds after starter Pat McGlothin had given up three runs in the ninth without getting anyone out.

In the second game, St. Paul hitters beat out 13 hits.

Louisville beat Indianapolis 4-2 in their opener as Russ Kemmerer tossed a three-hitter but the Indians came back with a 1-0 victory in the nightcap on Dave Pope's homer and Sam Jones' two-hit pitching.

Kansas City continued to move up in standings by beating Toledo twice. The Blues won the first game 7-6 with a 13-hit attack and rallied with four runs in the second game's final inning for a 9-8 triumph.

The Blues thus hopped into a third-place tie with Charleston, which beat Minneapolis twice, 3-2 and 2-0.

Vanderbilt Grey hook up again in the $100,000 added Preakness at Pimlico.

You can be sure of one thing in the Preakness. Eric Guerin, Native Dancer's jockey, isn't going to let Dark Star get such a big lead as he did Saturday, especially since the Preakness distance is one-sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Derby.

Grice Wins 30-Lap Feature As Speedway Season Opens

The weatherman cooperated wholeheartedly Sunday afternoon as the local Stock Car racing season got under way at the Marion Speedway. A large throng of racing fans saw Dude Grice take top honors in the 30-lap feature, after getting a break about midway in the race.

Bill Krohmer gained a lot of fame by his performance, winning three seconds. Krohmer was out in front in the feature, when he blew a front tire on his Hudson Hornet. He managed to continue in the race, but at reduced speed, running first with a flat; then losing the tire completely on the north turn. Until this unfortunate occurence, he and Grice were staging a battle for first place. Grice could not seem to catch and pass Krohmer, although at several times, they ran bumper to bumper. Eddie Fridley managed to snare third place in the feature event, finishing a short distance behind Krohmer.

Winning heat races yesterday at the Marion Speedway were: Eddie Fridliy and Paul Hooper of Marion and Vernon Meyers of Fremont. Dude Grice won the Australian pursuit race, barely edging Paul Hooper. Hooper piled up several more points as he won the figure eight or suicide race. Other boys placing in the money were Bob Harris of Bucyrus, Don Stevens of Marion, Bill Collier of Marion and Floyd McKnight of Marion.

Promoter Cecil Addams last night announced a change in the racing schedule at the Marion Speedway, in an effort to attract more drivers. Starting next Sunday, races will be held on Sunday evenings, under the lights. Open racing will be featured and there will be no advance in prices. The complete racing program, which will get under way with time trials at 7:30 and races at 8:30, will be announced later this week.

In all, 20 cars were on hand for the races yesterday.

Most of the cars were in tip top condition, and while the races were started on a very oily track, by feature time most of the drivers had located their "groove" and were pouring on the gas.

Dude Grice, the feature winner, also posted the best time in the trials, not a record, but a fast 2.26 seconds. Vernon Meyers, Paul Hooper and Dick Grice were next in order in time trials.

CLAY WORKERS STRIKE

ZANESVILLE, O. (AP)—A strike of 250 members of the United Brick and Clay Workers, AFL, began Sunday at the Ludowici-Cladon Co. at New Lexington. The workers are seeking a new contract to replace one which expired April 30.

Hogan Denies Any Plans For Retiring

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Ben Hogan pocketed the $2,600 first prize he won in the Pan American Open and told reporters today the next wad of cash he plans on picking up is that offered by the Greenbrier Open at White Sulpher Springs, W. Va., this week.

Hogan seemed surprised when asked by reporters if he planned to retire any time soon. There have been such rumors.

"I expect to be around for a long time," he said. "I'm going to keep busy. Don't know exactly how many tournaments a year I'll enter, but I'll keep busy."

Hogan, a Texan now playing out of Palm Springs, Calif., said he plans to play in the Greenbrier Open, starting Thursday, and the Colonial Open at Ft. Worth, Tex., May 21-24.

Hogan was disappointed at yesterday's 2-over par 74, which boosted his total for the 72 holes to a bare 2-under par 286.

He finished three strokes ahead of Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., and Fred Haas of New Orleans, tied at 289 after rounds of 73 on the final day.

Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., shot a 69 on the last round for 290 and fourth place. The best amateur mark was turned in by Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., who tied three pros—Johnny Palmer, Iverson Martin and Jack Harden—at 300.

Marshall, Bell And Greengrass Tabbed As Redleg Outfield

NEW YORK (AP) — So Long, two-platoon system—so long, as far as the Cincinnati Redlegs' outfield is concerned.

Manager Rogers Hornsby said Sunday, before a scheduled doubleheader between Cincinnati and New York was rained out here, that he is kissing off the experiment.

"That's for the birds," he grumbled. "I was never sold on it. Now I'm convinced I was right. From now on I'll stick with my pros. They're (Willard) Marshall, (Gus) Bell and (Jim) Greengrass. They'll be in there every day regardless of whether we're facing righties or lefties. Good hitters are supposed to hit all kinds of pitching. I've seen enough of the other guys (Wally Post and Bob Borkowski) to convince myself they can't do the job."

Greengrass, for that matter, has played in every one of the Redlegs' 11 games thus far this season, and the rookie has come through by hitting at a .405 clip.

Monday's scheduled single game with the Giants at the Polo Grounds will be made a doubleheader, with Ken Raffensberger (0-2) and Bubba Church (0-1 pitching for Cincinnati against Larry Jansen (1-2) and Jim Hearn (1-2) of the Giants.

Adds $6,300 to Prize List in Ardmore Open

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — Oilman Waco Turner gave touring golf professionals an extra incentive, adding $6,300 to the prize money to make the Ardmore Open a $21,300 tournament, the fifth largest on the PGA trail.

A field of 81 amateurs will tee off today for 18 holes of qualifying play. Forty amateurs will be allowed to compete when the tournament opens officially Thursday.

Some 100 of the nation's top pros have checked in.

Kid Gavilan And Manager Blast Official

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Ruby Goldstein never again will referee a Kid Gavilan fight, the Keed's incensed manager, Angel Lopez, said today in the wake of his upset defeat at the hands of Danny (Bang Bang) Wombr.

"Goldstein has voted against us in seven fights," Lopez fumed, adding that he would insist that Goldstein not be permitted to officiate at any of the welterweight king's bouts in the future.

All the fuss came about as a result of the 10-round nontitle scrap here Saturday night in which Womber gained a unanimous decision over Gavilan, who had piled up a record of 27 fights without a defeat since losing on a split decision to Eugene Hairston Oct. 30, 1950, in Scranton, Pa.

Goldstein voted for Womber 6-3-1, and the two judges pretty much agreed Dick Albino also had it 6-3-1, while Jack Kimball saw it 5-3-2.

Womber, a 26-year-old Chicago Negro, who has done most of his campaigning in Europe recently—and with little success—said he'd like to have a title shot at Gavilan.

But neither the keed nor the furious Lopez was having any part of such a deal.

"When I consider myself defeated, I'll give a man a chance at the title," Gavilan said. "When I don't consider he defeated me, he has no right to it. Womber is good. He gives a good show. But I don't think the decision was fair enough."

Gavilan, who weighed 151, fought only in spurts, while Womber, at 152½ pressed the battle all the way.

Dark Star's front-running surprise triumph, it must be pointed out the Dancer was blocked by Money Broker at the first turn, had to be eased back to find running room and raced wide during the run to upper turn on the backstretch.

Still it looked as if the Dancer would take it all when he started to pour it on from one and one-half lengths back at the top of the home stretch. But Henry Moreno had a lot of horse under him and Dark Star just managed to stave off the Dancer's final bid.
